PREFACE

The Everitt Family Book Committee believes that Richard Everitt who died in Jamaica in 1658 was born about 1613 in Essex County, England. The Committee believes he was a relative of William Pyncheon and that they came together to Springfield, Massachusetts, from England. In Springfield, Richard Everitt married Mary Winch. The Book Committee believes that she died and left one son, Daniel.

Richard Everitt came to Long Island about 1651 and married shortly thereafter as a second wife, a daughter of Nehemiah Smith who lived on Long Island in 1651 and 1652. Nehemiah Smith later died in Norwich, Connecticut. In 1656, Richard Everitt was one of the original settlers of Jamaica, Long Island.

The facts supporting the position of the Book Committee are included in each associated section of the book.

First Settlement at Springfield, Massachusetts, 1636.

Richard Everit, a Long Island patentee and magistrate under the Dutch government, was of parentage hitherto undetermined. He first appears on Long Island in 1656 as an original settler of the town called by the Dutch Rustdorp and by the English Jamaica. Jamaica was originally settled by a small group of Englishmen from Hempstead, a neighboring village, and Hempstead was founded in 1644 by emigrants from New England, chiefly from Wethersfield, and Stamford, in the New Haven Colony. (1)

From the Records of the Colony and Plantation of New Haven, selected by Charles Hoadley, I found that "the estate of Mr. George Lamberton ... is creditor ... Richard Everitt for 10 pounds ..." as found on page 359 entered by the Court the First day of February, 1647. (2)

It does not seem to be known that Richard Everit was in Hempstead before going to Jamaica, although it is entirely probable, as his name appears on such early records there as the tax list of 1657-1658.

Dear Sir:

Mr. Carpenter and I have been working on the Genealogy of the EVERETT FAMILY for some time, and we are herewith sending a compilation of our findings. As this family origin dates back to the early settlement of America, I feel that it may be of interest to many of its descendants.

This Everett Family seems to have been of a different line than that of the celebrated Everett Family of Dedham, Massachusetts. However, I have a copy of a letter written by Edward Everett in 1860, in which he states his desire to find a connection between the two families. Unfortunately, the outbreak of the Civil War and his early death kept him from realizing this desire, and also closed a "book" that we have found hard to open.

If you can find it possible to publish the manuscript that I am enclosing, perhaps someone may be able to furnish more information to add to it.

The biggest question that I have, seems to be: Who was the father of JOHN Everett who went to Pennsylvania?

I wish to thank you sincerely for any help you may be able to give to us.

Very truly yours,
Vernon R. Everett
(Mrs. Vernon R. Everett)

It seems quite certain that Richard of Jamaica was not from <sup>the</sup> was not from Connecticut settlements, and the search for his origin goes back to Massachusetts. The distinguished Everett family of Dedham, Massachusetts, have always believed that it was their ancestor, Richard by name, who presumably arrived with William Pynchon, the founder of Roxbury and Springfield, on the JEWELL, one of Winthrop's fleet, which left England on April 8, 1630. When William Pynchon went through the wilderness to found Springfield in 1636, Richard Everit appears as his trader and agent. Everit witnessed an Indian deed there in 1636, and appears at various times as a landowner and town officer, certainly being there as late as June 29, 1643, when he married Mary Winch, a young girl of twenty, who had come over with the family of Rowland Stebbins in 1638 on the FRANCIS, of Ipswich. This assumption of the Dedham Everett family would seem to ignore certain facts and presuppose others. It would make the Richard who was at Springfield moving back and forth between Dedham and Springfield, a considerable distance then, in every year up to the marriage in 1643, sometimes appearing in both towns less than four weeks apart. Pynchon does not seem to have had any interests in Dedham. Besides, assuming that one man owned the pieces of land granted to Richard Everit (Everitt, Everett, Eweret) in both villages in the same period, the tradition in order to accept the marriage in Springfield on June 29, 1643, to Mary Winch, has to presuppose an earlier marriage to a woman unnamed. Six children were recorded at Dedham, the sixth on March 14, 1643, and another was born on June 12, 1644; others following to make eleven in all, as the second marriage, if such it was, appears somewhat unnatural. Moreover, it is decidedly important to note that almost invariably the Dedham records speak of Richard Evered, rather than Everit, and that the Dedham will proved in 1682 is signed Evered, while the Springfield records always speak of Richard Everit. An early and particularly reputable family history says that Richard Everett of Dedham came over in 1634-1635 with his wife Mary, and this, with the implied continuity of this relationship, as Richard in his will mentioned his wife Mary, seems more probable than a second marriage, unconfirmed as this particular information is. Admitting then the possibility that the Richards of Dedham and Springfield may be different men, there may be advanced reasons why Richard Everit of Springfield may have gone to Long Island. It is known that Everit was closely attached to the service of William Pyncheon, in Springfield. The excellent Pyncheon lineage is familiar (1) back into Essex County, England, and there it has been learned that a Richard Everit (Everard), of gentle birth, married a sister of an earlier William Pyncheon, and that some relationship existed between the founder of Springfield and his follower seems certain. When Pyncheon was so much angered and distressed by the harshness of the Springfield colonists after his publication of a so-called "heretic" book, he gave up America, returning to England in 1652. It can be believed that the position of Everit became less fortunate then and his thoughts might well have turned toward Long Island, for at Hempstead were the families of Coe, Ward, Osborn and Denton, among others, that came originally from Essex County, England, where Everit must have known of them, as all these names appear on the same parish registers. It is interesting, too, to note that an early Everit and a Denton of Jamaica married (1725), and that their young son, Daniel Denton, appeared in Springfield for a few years.

Such evidence as all this is admissible in an attempt to arrive at the origin of Richard Everit of Jamaica, surmise as it must largely be. The multiplicity of the name Richard in all branches of the Everit family is the greatest difficulty in arriving at positive identification. Richard Everit of Jamaica, who was a patentee in 1656, one of the very first town magistrates in 1650, and active in many public matters. In 1658 Richard Everit is taxed for six acres of land at Hempstead. He had no house nor cattle on it and was taxed merely for meadow land and "fewer gatties." This land seems to have been granted in the general allotment of that year, but Richard, Senior, may have been just adding to land owned before going to Jamaica. (1)

Richard Everett:

Among those who witnessed the signing of the deed conveying the lands in and about Springfield from the Indians to William Pynchon, Henry Smith and John Burr, July 15, 1636, was Richard Everett. He was a young man and eight years afterwards he married Mary Winch, who had come in the ship GRACIS from Ipswich, England, to this country in the family of Howland Stebbins, in 1638 at the age of 15, and came to Springfield with the Stebbins family. On June 29, 1643, she married Richard Everett, who did not remain here long after that event.

No definite information has yet been obtained of the arrival of Richard Everett in New England, nor from what part of England he came from. From the fact that he was for several years in the employ of William Pynchon, that Pynchon himself was connected by marriage with the Everard family of County Essex, England, and that Richard was a very common baptismal name in the same Everard family, it is surmised that Richard Everett was born in County Essex.

In the year 1636 it is known that he was with William Pynchon who conducted a party of settlers, with their families through the wilderness, to the Connecticut River, to a place called Springfield, now known as Springfield. Here on the fifteenth of July 1636, he made his mark as one of the white witnesses to the Indian deed, transferring the land to William Pynchon, Henry Smith and John Burr. This is the first positive date that can be attached to him.

On the 20th of March 1637 a town meeting ordered John Searle and Richard Everett to lay out 24 acres of mowing marsh for Mr. Pynchon.

A year later, on the 21st of March, 1638, he was reported to have been present at the very exciting interview between Capt. John Mason and William Pynchon as graphically stated in the History of Springfield by Hiram A. Green. In this account he is called Mr. Pynchon's "brother".

On the 3rd of January 1639 at Springfield a general meeting of the plantation appointed a committee of six to lay out bounds both sides of the river and he was named as one of that committee. The Committee appears to have given prompt attention to their work as they made their report five days later on the 8th of January. At the next town meeting on the 13th of the month, an assessment was laid to pay a portion of the cost of building the minister's house and another assessment for his salary. Everett was assessed 11/30 for the former and 11 for the latter. Three days later he received his only grant of land in Springfield, a lot one rod wide, between John Woodcock's pall and Goodman Gregory's lot. This lot of one rod wide was probably taken of the town with the view of adding it to Gregory's lot, which Everett was intending to purchase. Comparing Thomas Stebbins record with what was written in the old Towns Book, bearing the date of January 16, 1638 namely, "It is ordered that three rod of ground which lies betwixt John Woodcocks pall and Goodman Gregory's that 2 rods shall be appropriated to to Goodman Gregory, and one rod to Richard Everett. Goodman Gregory sold his lot to the Town; May 1st, 1645, the town gave the said lot to Thomas Stebbins, but we find no mention of the rod that was given to Richard Everett, who deserted the Town. We suppose it fell into the Town's hands again.

In 1641 we find him in Springfield at a town meeting where he is ordered that a road be laid off beside his lot.

On the 11th of March 1642-3 when Henry Gregory proposes to sell his land to Richard Everett, but the town took it themselves. Under the date of 29th of June 1643, in the Town Records, is entered the marriage of Richard Everett and Mary Winch;

... It is agreed that John Searle and Rich: Everitt shall measure out twenty four acres of mowing marsh ground afore the house of Mr. William Pyncheon and soe much vnderland ground adjoining as shall make his house lott with the said marsh fifty and four acres according to an order in the first division of house lotts.

January 3rd, 1638.

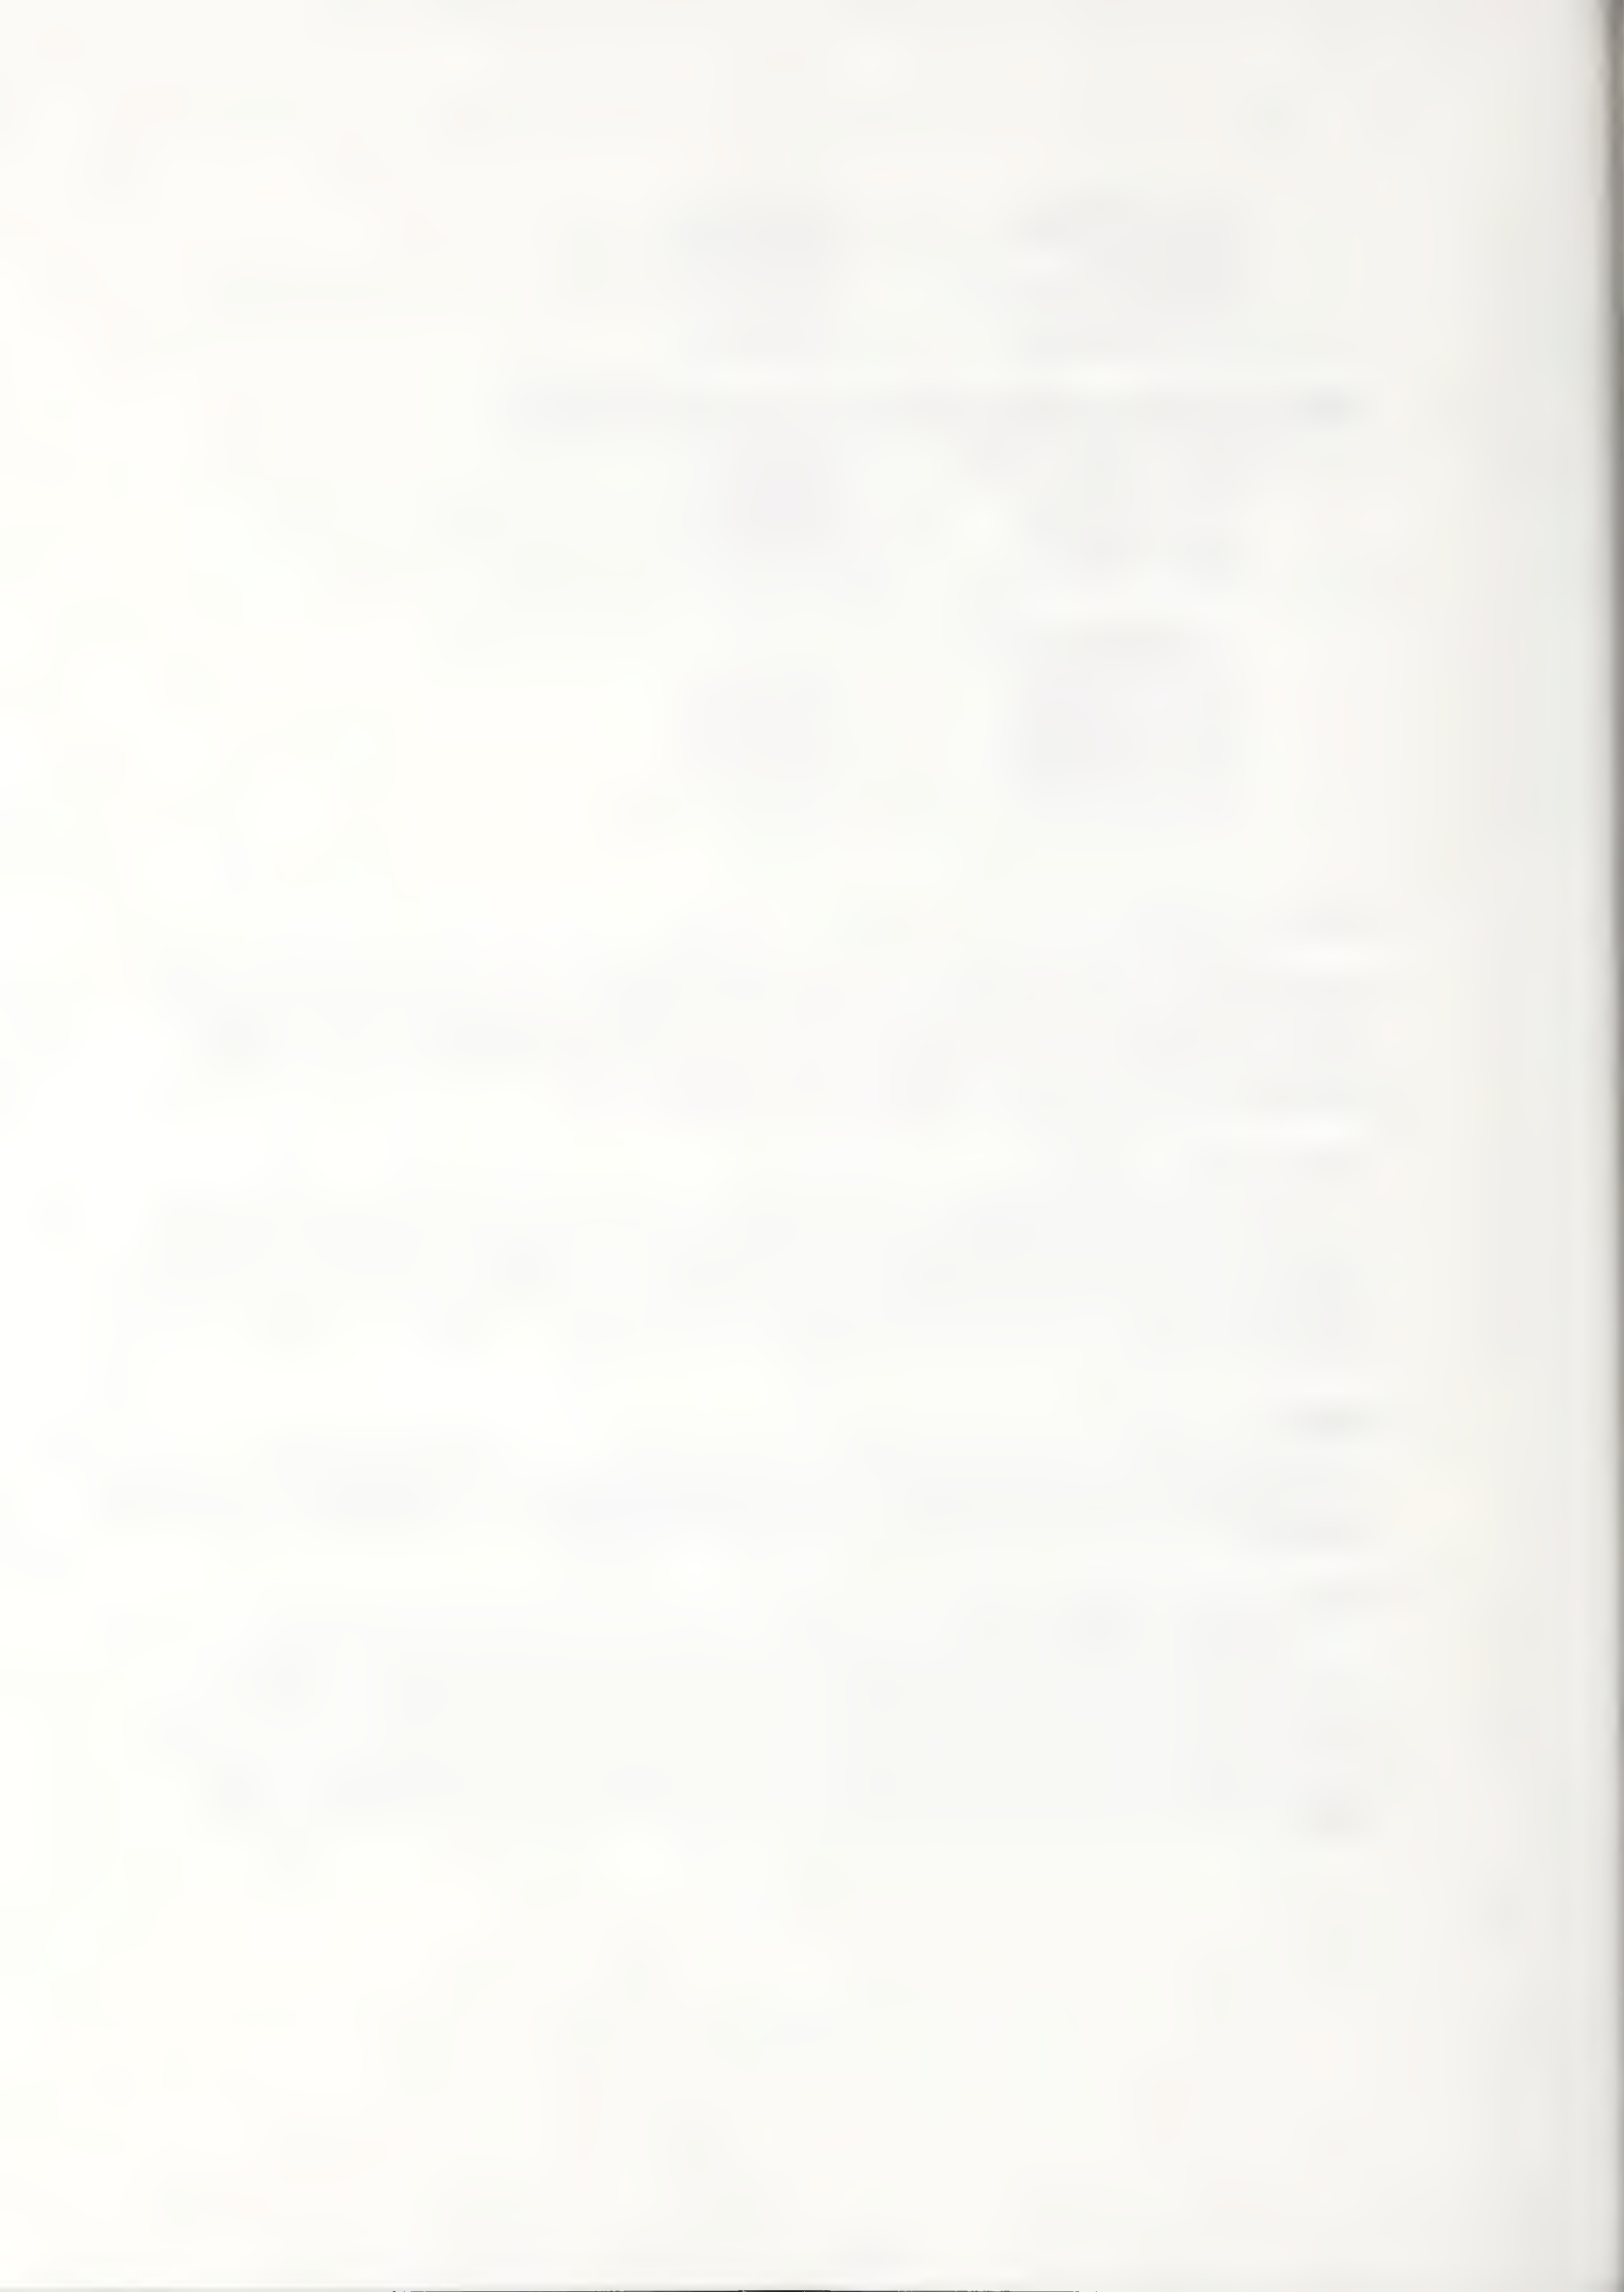

It is agreed by the plantation at a general meeting that these six men undertaken shall set out the bounds of the plantation up the river on both sides of the river and to make the lease for the clearing of it. The P'sons appointed are Mr. W. Pyncheon; John Burr; Henry Smith; John Cable; Richard Everitt; Tho: Mirak.

March 26, 1640:

... It is ordered that an highway shall be left and layed out in the hazelkey meadows betwixt Rich: Everitts lott & the which was Thomas Woodford lott, the way to be 2 rods in width.

March 14th, 1642 -

Henry Gregory being purposed to sell his lott and p'oundings it to the Plantation by his sonne Judah according to order, Richard Everitt being his champion. The Plantation gave the vote wherein they disclosed the champion p'ounded and resolve to buy the lott according to the conditions expressed in a former order, dated January 24th, 1638.

The division of the lands was begun in 1636, soon after the arrival of Pyncheon's company. The grants were in larger quantities after the first 20 years. The grants were made upon the condition that the settler should remain in the town 5 years. If he left before that time, he must resign it into the town's hands. In each chapman, or buyer must be acceptable to the authorities. When Henry Gregory who was the first owner submitted his chapman in the person of Richard Everitt, the selectmen objected, and the estate passed into the hands of Thomas Stebbins. Everitt had almost from the beginning been an inhabitant of the town, coming immediately after the arrival of William Pyncheon, in whose employ he was continued for some time, and what objection the selectmen had does not appear.

Most of those who came here within the first ten or fifteen years after the arrival of Pyncheon from Roxbury, were young unmarried men. Of these and a few who were married, several were from Wales, but the majority were of English descent, and all possessed that element in character which triumphs over obstacles. They were the yeomanry of the mother country who held that all labor was honorable and ennobling.

Among the young men whose marriages were recorded here are the following: -

 William Warringer
 Thomas Harrick

~~John and Richard Nicholas~~

1. Clare<sup>5</sup> married Magdalen Vanderburgh. He died in 1791. (1)

A Richard Everit (also Everitt) died intestate in 1764, when his son, Clear, was appointed administrator. John Clare, of Jamaica, in his will, dated and proved in 1720, left land not only to Richard, eldest son of his sister, Elizabeth Everit, but after the death of his wife practically all his real property was to go "to my cousin Richard Everit during his life and after his decease to his son Clare." Just who this Richard was is not certain, but he was surely one of the Jamaica family. The son's name is more usually spelled Clear, rather than Clare, but does not seem to have been St. Clair, as sometimes thought. Clear Everitt, who in January 1744/45 married Magdalena van der Burg, became a prominent citizen of early Poughkeepsie. He was sheriff in 1754, an overseer, and the owner of considerable property. Some indications seem to show that he was a Tory, but his property was not confiscated in 1777, like that of most Loyalists, and in 1784 he was paid rent for the use of his room by the Court of Oyer and Terminer. However, he was apparently absent from his home during part of the war, did not sign the Pledge of Association of 1775, nor bear a patriotic assessment. The stone house owned by Clear and his son, Richard Everitt in Poughkeepsie, according to popular belief was occupied during part of the Revolution by Governor Clinton. The State of New York has bought the building and it is now preserved as a historical museum. It is not improbable that Washington and Lafayette stayed there, and certainly it was used for important purposes, although it is not certain that it was the prin-

APPENDIX

The Family of Nehemiah Smith of Norwich, Connecticut.

(I) Rev. Nehemiah Smith immigrant was born in England about 1605 and settled at Plymouth in New England before March 6, 1637-38 when he and others applied to be made freemen of the colony. He married January 21, 1639-40 Anne Bourne of Marshfield, daughter of Thomas and Elizabeth Bourne. Her sister Martha married John Bradford, son of Governor William Bradford. Nehemiah Smith lived for a time at Marshfield and is believed to have been the first religious teacher there. He was appointed May 5, 1640 on a committee of five to view all the meadows of Green Harbor (Marshfield) which were not granted and report their measurements to the general court. From Marshfield Smith sailed to Stratford, Connecticut as early as 1644. He belonged to the church and some of his children were baptised there. The records show that he raised sheep extensively and was called "Shepherd" Smith. He owned land in the New Haven jurisdiction. He removed to Long Island about 1652, but returned in a year or two, and located at New London, Connecticut where he was granted land in 1652. He appears to have been a weaver by trade and doubtless spun the wool from his own sheep and made it into cloth. About 1655 he settled on a farm at Smith Lake, Pequonock. Smith was one of the original proprietors of Norwich, Connecticut and had the largest tract of land. His house stood about fifty-seven feet north of the oldest burying ground. He had grants in 1661 and afterward. He conveyed some land to his nephew, Edward Smith, November 18, 1668 and he and wife Ann conveyed their homestead to their son-in-law, June 12, 1674, in consideration of moneys due for the red-records, including the will, have been destroyed. The records sometimes refer to him as "Mr" in recognition of the fact that in early life he was a preacher.

Children: 1. Sarah, baptised in the First Church, New Haven, December 14, 1645 when about three years old. Mary, baptised December 14, 1645, at New Haven. 3. Hannah baptised with Sarah and Mary. 4. Mercy, baptised February 22, 1645-46. 5. Elisabeth. 6. Nehemiah, mentioned below. 7. Lydia, born 1647. 8. Ann (perhaps named as Sarah for the mother was called Sarah in the church records). 9. Mehitable.

(II) Nehemiah (2) son of Rev. Nehemiah (I) Smith was born about 1646 in New Haven and was baptised there October 24, 1646, by Rev. John Davenport, the founder. He moved with his father to Pequonnock farm near Smith Lake, when he was about ten years old, and when his father moved to Hardsloh he remained there on the homestead. His uncle, John Smith, and cousin Edward, lived near. Much of interest about the family is learned from a contest over the will of this Uncle John. Nehemiah Smith married (first) October 24, 1669, Lydia, daughter of Alexander Winchester, of Roxbury, Massachusetts. In the same year he was a member of the general assembly at Hartford, an office he filled for several years. Both he and his wife were members in full communion of the First Church of New London, although one child was baptised at First Church of Stonington. He bought a large tract of land at Piantic, Connecticut in 1691-92, of Joseph and Jonathan Hull, of Hartford, north of Black Point on Piantic Bay. In 1694 he is called sergeant in the records and in the same year was put on the building committee to take charge of erecting a new church. In 1697 he was ensign of the military company; in 1706 he was a lieutenant. He was a member of the general assembly, justice of the peace, justice of the quorum, selectman, and he served on various committees to settle boundary and other disputes. In 1715 he was appointed overseer of Indians at Niantic. He was in the assembly 1707-16, and town clerk 1707-13. His wife Lydia died October 24, 1723, in her seventy-eighth year. He married (second) September 9, 1724, Elisabeth Haynes, a widow. Nehemiah Smith died August 8, 1727, in his eighty-first year. Children: Lydia, born October 29, 1670; Nehemiah, mentioned below; Samuel, June 2, 1676; Martha, October 15, 1678; Daniel, November 29, 1680; Margaret, 1683; Joseph baptized November 7, 1686.

(III) Nehemiah (3) son of Nehemiah (2) Smith, was born November 14, 1673. He married April 22, 1696, Dorothy, daughter of Isaac and Martha (Park) Wheeler, and granddaughter of Thomas and Mary Wheeler. Both joined the First Church of New London. He was a farmer; was townswan in 1712-14. He was born and always lived on the homestead near Smith Lake, Groton, Connecticut. He also owned land at 'Mowsyrock'. He died November 21, 1744; his wife born December 6, 1675, died May 25, 1736. Children: Dorothy, born August 26, 1697; Hannah, February 20, 1699; Elisabeth, November 17, 1700; Lathan, September 16, 1702; John, mentioned below; William, May 10, 1706; Isaac, December 20, 1707; Mary, November 16, 1709; Lydia, January 24, 1712-13; Jabes, February 7, 1714; Anna, November 1, 1717; Sarah, July 14, 1719.

(IV) John, son of Nehemiah (3) Smith, was born at Groton, June 14, 1704. He married, May 10, 1727, Temperance Holmes, of Stonington, daughter of Joshua and Fear (Sturges) Holmes, and great-granddaughter of Robert Belton, of Stonington. From Groton he removed to Colchester, where he and his wife joined the church, November 18, 1738. He was captain of the town band in 1749. Both joined the church of Stonington by letter from the Colchester church. He died December 22, 1759. His widow married December 10, 1761, as his second wife, James Treadway, of Colchester.

Children of John Smith, five of whom were born at Groton and the youngest seven at Colchester: John, born March 26, 1723; Joshua, January 31, 1725; Abigail, September 27, 1731; Nehemiah, mentioned below; David, December 10, 1735, died young; Abigail, December 7, 1737; Caleb, January 4, 1739; Roswell, February 19, 1741-42; David, July 20, 1744; Temperance, December 7, 1746; Charles, March 9, 1749; Olive, February 12, 1753.

(7) Nehemiah (4) son of John Smith, was born at Groton, October 30, 1733. He married May 3, 1758, Abigail Avery of Groton. Her mother, Thankful, was married at the age of fifteen and had fifteen children, living to the great age of one hundred and one years. Four of her family were killed in the battle of Groton Heights, her husband, two sons and a son-in-law. Mrs. Smith was born December 12, 1737, died August 8, 1797. Nehemiah Smith was a lieutenant and is said to have taken part in the battle of Groton Heights. He died May 4, 1810.

NOTE: The Book Committee believes that Nehemiah Smith, b. 1605, was first married in England and that his daughter of that marriage married Richard Everitt, of Springfield, Massachusetts, about 1652 when Nehemiah Smith lived on Long Island in 1651 and 52. Daughter born in England by 1634.

Richard Everitt's wife name?

From Descendants of Rev. Nehemiah Smith, by H. Allen Smith.
(Found New York State Library, Albany)

Nehemiah (of Norwich) and John Smith (of New London) were brothers.
John had a nephew Edward brought over from England. Edward was probably son of their brother who remained in England. Probably heir to the Home Estate.

In 1781 there was a coat of arms in the family. However about this period there was a person who went around the country painting coats of arms for people. It is not proved that this sort of arms belonged to this family.

John Smith of New London, Conn., a tailor by trade, b.a. England, 1609, d. Oct. 4, 1679. Married 1640.

Joanna--d. 1687, at 73, widow with daughter, Elizabeth.

No children of own.

Possibly came to America with Brother Nehemiah in 1638.

1st appears in the Boston Town Records Vol. 2, p. 41.

29 5 mo. 1639. Granted a lot at Muddy River (now vicinity of Brooklyn, Mass.) Was sold land at Mystic (Town of Groton) July 5, 1653.

He made arrangement for his brother's son, Edward of England, to come over 1652.

After his arrival he sent him to his Uncle Nehemiah who was then Living L. I. (this was only a short period 1652 as was back in New London 1652). After John's death his will was contested. Edward claimed his Uncle John had adopted him. However the Estate was awarded the widow and eventually went to her dau. Elizabeth.

Now about the Coat of Arms.

This coat of arms traces back to Rt. Rev. Dr. William Smith (and further) who was born in the Parish of Prescot County of Lancaster about the year 1160.

He was Bishop of Lincoln and Litchfield and with Dr. Richard Sutton was the founder of Brasenose College Oxford. His picture and a long account of his life published by Ralph Churtas M.A. Oxford 1800.

Bishop Smith died at his palace at Buckden Jan. 2, 1513 and was buried in the nave of Lincoln Cathedral near the great western door according to the family records in the Harley MS No 1139. College of arms 1561. John Smith who was called Baron of Elmstall, was of Stafford and living 1561 was a descendant of the 5th Baron of the Bishop. He signed himself John Smyth and to him was granted a coat and the family arms recognized in 1561.

This gives an account of Sir Gilbert Dethicks Gift 162 fol 215
John Smyth of Newcastle-upon-Lyne Co Stafford.

A Genealogical History of a branch of the family remaining in England from the time of the Bishop Smith 1460 down to 1840 may be found in John Ward's Memorial History of Newcastle-upon-Lyne London 1843, published with the "Borough of Stoke-upon-Trent."

From his obituary found in the Moravian Archives at Bethlehem;

"John Everett, born January 25, 1717 in Long Island came to Pennsylvania with his father, after the death of his mother." He lived first in Maxatania, then Alle-mangle, now Lyn<sup>T</sup> Township, and later in Penn Township, Gnadenhutten, now Leheighton, Pennsylvania.

He bought a large tract of land in Lynn Township, and a "Thomas" Everett bought land adjoining it about 1748. It is possible that John and Thomas may be brothers, who came with their father to Pennsylvania some time before 1742 for John married Mary Holder in 1742.
